Interview

Q1: How would you describe yourself to someone who has never met you?

A1: I am a mother of six, three sons and three daughters, and a grandmother to two wonderful grandchildren. I enjoy living a quieter life away from the city, where I can stay connected to nature. I keep chickens and goats, which has become an important and fulfilling part of my everyday life.

Q2: Where did you grow up?

A2: I grew up in Elizabethtown. A small town in central Kentucky.

Q3: What people had the biggest influence on you?

A3: The biggest influence in my life was my grandmother. She taught me the importance of hard work, family, and taking care of the people around you. She lived a simple life and believed in doing things for yourself rather than relying on others. Watching her manage a household, raise her family, and still make time to help others showed me what strength and independence really look like.

Q4: What are you most proud of accomplishing?

A4: I am most proud of raising my six children and seeing them grow into responsible, caring adults.

Q5: What 3 hobbies do you enjoy most?

A5: I enjoy spending my free time doing activities that keep both my mind and body engaged. I love solving Sudoku puzzles. It's a relaxing way to challenge myself and stay sharp. Caring for my chickens and goats is another favorite pastime; I find it rewarding to nurture the animals and watch them thrive, and it keeps me connected to nature. I also enjoy taking long walks outdoors, exploring the fields and woods around our home. It's peaceful and gives me time to think.

Q6: What goals do you have for the future?

A6: Looking ahead, I want to stay as healthy as I can so I can continue enjoying life and watch my grandchildren grow up and hopefully see my great-grandchildren one day.

Q7: What makes you happiest in your life today?

A7: What makes me happiest in my life today is spending time with my family and enjoying the quiet, simple life I've built. Being around my children and grandchildren brings me a sense of peace and fulfillment that nothing else can match.

Q8: What qualities of yours have helped you succeed the most?

A8: The qualities that have helped me succeed the most are patience, perseverance, and a strong sense of responsibility. Raising a large family and maintaining a household has required consistency and dedication, even during challenging times. I've learned to stay calm, work through problems, and put in the effort needed to care for both my family and my home. Being dependable and willing to adapt has helped me handle life's ups and downs.

Q9: What is something about you that most people don't know?

A9: Most people don't know that I quietly fought cervical cancer. I didn't share it with very many people, but I faced it with determination and resilience. Going through it taught me a lot about inner strength, perseverance, and appreciating every day. Overcoming the illness gave me a renewed sense of purpose and made me even more determined to stay healthy so I could continue enjoying life with my family.

Q10: What advice would you give to your younger self?

A10: If I could give advice to my younger self, I would tell her to trust in her own strength and take things one step at a time. Life will have challenges, but you are stronger and more resilient than you realize. I would also remind her to cherish the small moments with family and friends, and not to worry so much about what others think. Every experience, good or bad, will help shape the person you become.

Biography

Julia Bowman is a devoted mother of six, three sons, three daughters, and a proud grandmother to two wonderful grandchildren. She has built a life centered on family, nature, and quiet fulfillment, living away from the bustle of the city in her hometown of Elizabethtown, Kentucky. Here, she finds joy and purpose in caring for her chickens and goats, tending to her home, and embracing the rhythms of rural life.

Growing up in Elizabethtown, Julia was deeply influenced by her grandmother, whose example of hard work, self-reliance, and compassion left an indelible mark. She learned from her grandmother's wisdom and the way she managed her household, cared for her family, and still made time to help others, instilling in her a profound appreciation for strength, independence, and responsibility: qualities she has carried throughout her life.

The achievement she is most proud of is raising her six children to become responsible, caring adults. She believes that the values of patience, perseverance, and dedication have been essential to her success, both in nurturing her family and managing her household. Life's challenges, including a private battle with cervical cancer, have only strengthened her resolve and appreciation for each day spent with loved ones.

Looking forward, Julia hopes to maintain her health and continue sharing meaningful moments with her children and grandchildren, with the hope of witnessing future generations of her family grow. She encourages embracing life's challenges with patience, trusting in one's inner strength, and savoring the simple, quiet joys that make life truly meaningful.
